National Friendly Nomination Guidelines

Please read these important notes before completing your Nomination Form.

What is a Nomination?

In line with the official Friendly Societies Act of 1992, a registered Nomination will permit you to name an individual(s) to receive the value of your Society membership, upon your death, to a maximum of £5000. (Please note £5,000 is the maximum covered by the Nomination – the total claim value may of course be higher or lower.)

Why should I take one out?

A Nomination allows money to be paid without waiting for probate or letters of administration to be granted. No legal documentation other than a certificate of death (or other proof of death acceptable to the Society) and the registered Nomination itself will be required. It is useful if you want to ensure payment is made immediately to a particular individual(s).

Who may or may not benefit?

- A nominee may not be an employee or officer of the Society unless they are a family member.
- A nominee may not be a business, organisation or charity.
- You may have more than one nominee. Money payable will be divided equally between the nominees unless otherwise specified. You may wish to state what percentage of the claim value should go to each nominee. Should one of the named nominees die before you and no 'Change' is made, their share will go to your estate.
- It is recommended that the nominee be over the age of sixteen years, as a nominee under that age cannot give a valid receipt for the money.

Who may complete the form?

The Society will only accept a Nomination made 'under the member's own hand' – in other words you must sign the form. Should you be unable to sign, you may make a 'mark'.

How will my family know a Nomination has been registered?

Once we've received your nomination form we will stamp it and return a copy to you. Please inform your family of your nomination and keep your recognised nomination form in a safe place. A Nomination is only valid if it has been registered by the Society, i.e. it will bear the Society's stamp.

Anything else I should know?

- Should the total value of your membership be more than £5000 the remainder will be payable to your estate.
- Subsequent marriage automatically revokes (cancels) the Nomination. A new Nomination will be required, even if the details remain unchanged.
- Where the Society has paid money to a nominee in ignorance of a marriage following the nomination, the receipt of the nominee shall be a valid discharge to the Society. i.e. If we pay your former spouse not knowing you have remarried, your new spouse will not be paid.

Please return the Nomination Form to the address stated below. It will then be stamped and authorised and your registered copy will be sent to you. Please keep your copy in a safe place together with any Society membership documentation which may be helpful in the event of a claim.
